Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Applicant alleges that Hwang does not teach all formats recorded on a single disc regardless of type of disc. However, the type of disc is not specified to be only one type. Thus, the information is recorded regardless of the type of disc, whether it is write-once or rewritable. In addition, multiple sessions of a single type of disc can contain data of various formats, which is why there is a need for a separate lead-in, program, and lead-out area to be compatible with each recording session. Applicant's proposed amendment to claim 36 raises new issues that require further consideration and search. The proposed amendment describes different limitations to the claimed optical apparatus.
